France Bolsters Military Forces on Border Lines

Guards Against Possible Threat From German Air Attack

BRITISH AID SOUGHT

Ethiopians Ready for Mobilization, Await League of Nations Action

By the Associated Press
France issued unexpected orders for military maneuvers and strengthened her defense along the German border Tuesday as the date drew near for Germany's official retirement from the League of Nations.
Simultaneously France was reported anxious for British aviation support against any threat from Germany in return for French reinforcements of the British fleet in the Mediterranean in case of trouble with Italy.
Emperor Haile Selassie Tuesday informed the League of Nations that he was prepared to mobilize his fighting men, and there were indications that this mobilization might be undertaken this week.

Ethiopians Ready
ADDIS ABABA. — (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie awaited only a signal from his League of Nations envoys to start the drumsbeat that will call approximately 2,000,000 eager warriors to arms. He made intensive preparations for this general mobilization to start at the first news the League has failed to stave off an Italian attack on his land.

Authorities said the signal might come within a few days. Then the whole empire will rally to the boom of drums.
The call to arms will be carried out in the traditional Ethiopian fashion. The emperor's "negritude" — official great drums—which are his means of proclaiming laws and warning the populace in time of national peril, will resound across the mountains and valleys "with the fury of trumpets before Jericho," officials said.

Series of Denials
The Ethiopian government denied emphatically that the general mobilization had been set definitely for Tuesday or Wednesday.
They denied also that Italy had begun hostilities in the north, that Italian pilots were flying over Ethiopian territory, or that Italian ground forces were firing machine guns and heavier weapons in the hope of provoking an Ethiopian response.

Another report denied by authorities was one to the effect two shipments of Japanese munitions had arrived.
"If Italian airmen dared to fly over Ethiopian territory our forces would shoot them down," said one high government spokesman. "It would be silly for Italian troops to waste artillery and machine gun ammunition since the Ethiopian armies are stationed 20 miles behind the actual front."

As for a report Italians had crossed the Ethiopian frontier, this source stated:
"If the Fascists invade, the news will travel like wildfire and will be broadcast immediately over the empire to galvanize the nation into action."

P. T. A. Council to Meet McCaskill Oct. 3

The Hempstead County P. T. A. Council will hold its Fall School Day of Instructions on Thursday, October 3rd, from 10:00 a. m. till 2:30 p. m. at McCaskill.

A very inspirational and instructional program has been planned.

CHICAGO. — (AP) — Assistant States Attorney Marshall Kearney said Tuesday that Frank Vitale, a grocery proprietor, had confessed that he had a part in a plot to set fire to a store on the first floor of a tenement building with the result of loss of 10 lives. Kearney said that Vitale accused Joseph D'Amico, 31, with setting fire to the house early Monday with gasoline or naphtha.

BATON ROUGE. — (AP) — Huey Long's last legislative mandates, 37 of them, became laws Tuesday as the administration pushed an investigation into his assassination.

BALTIMORE. — (AP) — Three men were killed Tuesday as a blast went off prematurely in a stone quarry here. Four others were seriously hurt, one so badly physically held little hope for his recovery. The only clue to the identity of one victim was a card found in a coat near his body. It bore the name of W. McKenney Miller. Two of the identified dead are brothers, Harry and Mac Laptrap.

$424 Is New Total for Uniform Fund

Auxiliary to Sponsor Ball Game and Wrestling Match

Personal donations of $4.05 brought the Hope Boys band uniform fund Tuesday to $424.07.
A canvass of business houses was completed Monday, and personal donations may be turned over to Mrs. L. N. Garner at Garner's Dressing Shop, Front street.
The auxiliary of the band announced Tuesday that it would sponsor a baseball game Thursday afternoon between the Storks and Hope Basket company team.
Thursday night the auxiliary will be given part of the proceeds taken in a wrestling match. Promoter Bert Maullin announced that the fight card would open with Dr. Barney Cosnick, former University of Illinois athlete, opposing the "Black Dragon," Bob Montgomery of Hot Springs, meets "Mystery Mike" in the feature event. All four wrestlers are new comers.

The two bouts will be held in the old Hope Fertilizer warehouse, East Second street.

Tickets for the baseball game and the wrestling matches will be put on sale Tuesday afternoon by the auxiliary of the band.
In reporting donations Monday, "M" System was credited with contributing $2. The report should have been $2.50.
Previously acknowledged $420.02.
Additional donations Tuesday:
Buck Shell $ 1.00
Mrs. Ralph Routin 1.00
Mrs. Nora Carrigan 2.00
Cash .65
Total to date $424.07

Passengers Taken Off Stranded Ship, Land in Jamaica

Rescue Ship Ariguaní Completes Transfer From Marooned Vessel

600 TAKEN ASHORE

Pleasure Cruise Interrupted When Hurricane Grounds Dutch Liner

KINGSTON, Jamaica. — (AP) — Four hundred and fifty passengers and about 250 of the crew of the marooned liner Rotterdam came ashore Tuesday to the peace and hospitality of Jamaica.

They landed from the rescue ship Ariguaní apparently unperturbed by the interruption of their pleasure cruise on a coral reef 60 miles south-east of here Monday.

Ship Is Marooned

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — The work of removing passengers from the grounded liner, Rotterdam, was completed Monday night as a tropical storm roaring up the Atlantic was centered 150 miles off Bermuda. The Holland American line was advised shortly before 8:30 p. m., the passengers had been transferred to the S. S. Ariguaní which started for Kingston, Jamaica.

Reports received at Kingston said the Rotterdam was pounding on a reef and leaking in four tanks. The salvage ship Killarig left for the grounded liner, approximately 60 miles to the southeast of Kingston.
Observers at Hamilton, Bermuda, said the storm was expected to pass 100 miles northwest of the island by 10 p. m. The disturbance was moving northeast at the 265-mph speed, northeast at the rate of 25 miles an hour.

Experience for Passengers
The Rotterdam carried about 450 passengers and a crew of 326. While the Ariguaní was steaming to the rescue of the Rotterdam, Capt. J. Van Dulken, veteran master of the liner, radioed his New York office:
"Everybody is happy. The passengers are taking it more or less as an experience."
The Rotterdam's crew was left aboard. All but a skeleton crew was expected to be taken off later.
The Rotterdam was en route back to New York after a cruise to the Virgin Islands and to La Guayra in Venezuela. The ship left New York September 21.

Tax Collections Greater in State

Report Shows Increase of $427,056.65 Over Last September

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman announced Monday that revenue from various state taxes in September exceeded those of August by $467,597.83 and were $127,056.65 greater than for September, 1934.

The total revenue for September was $1,384,911.36, including $216,384.13 netted from the two per cent sales tax. The sales tax collections last month were $203,000.49, making a total of $1,181,454.82 for the two months. Several thousand dollars in sales tax monies are due in next month.
Liquor revenues increased from $34,806.65 in August to $43,019.25 this month despite the fact that several towns have voted dry in local option elections.

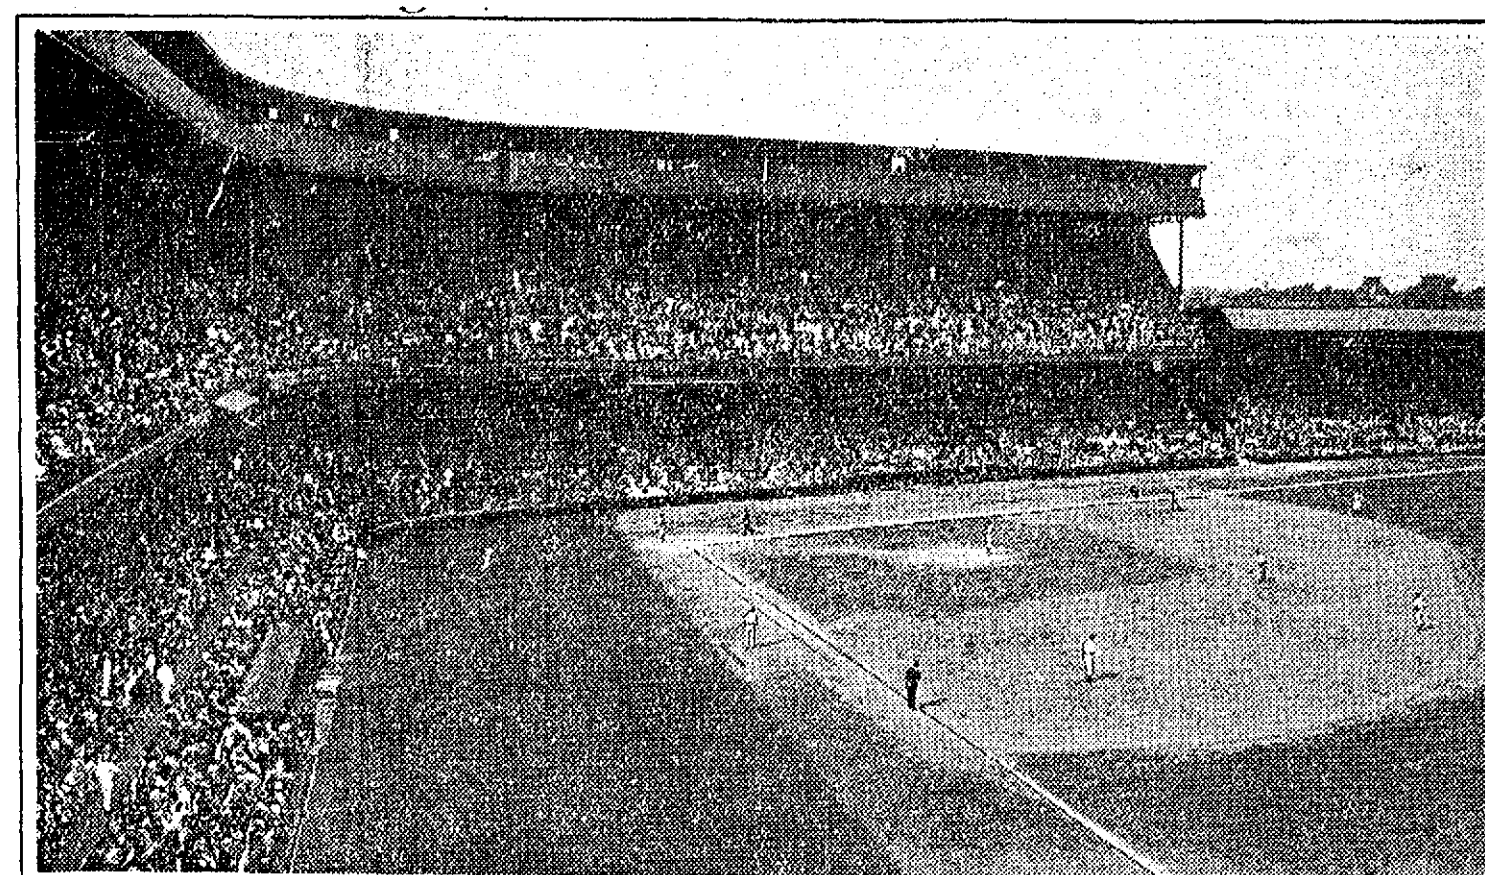

Cool weather was seen by revenue department employees as the reason for the slump in beer tax collections from $17,358.97 in August to $15,636.49 in September.
Gasoline tax collections set a new all-time record, amounting to $755,128.48, compared to the August collections of $708,939.87, which had been the record. Gasoline tax collections are on an on-consumed the previous month.

Soft Coal Miners Return to Work

Approximately 400,000 Men Affected by New Wage Hike

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — Their demands for a wage increase granted striking soft coal miners in all but three of the Appalachian districts returned to work Tuesday.
Approximately 400,000 men were affected with the new wage scale.
The miners struck a week ago Monday. The new wage agreement was reached last Friday but their return to work was deferred until Tuesday. It was the shortest strike in bituminous coal industry's history.

Rigid Quarantine for Prison Farm

State Hospital Ward Also Affected by Health Officer's Order

LITTLE ROCK. — Quarantine of approximately 700 convicts and officials at the state prison farm near Tucker and of patients of one ward at the State Hospital here, following death at the hospital of a convict believed to have had spinal meningitis and development of another case diagnosed positively as meningitis at Camp 3, was announced Monday by Dr. W. B. Grayson, state health officer.

Convicts and officials at Camps 1, 2 and 3 were placed under quarantine Monday after the illness of Elsa Vance, 22, sentenced from Pope county, was declared spinal meningitis. Vance was admitted to the prison hospital from Camp 3 Saturday, after having been ill about 24 hours. His condition was reported critical Monday night.

Another prisoner, Sam Downey, 39, sentenced from Miller county, was admitted to the State Hospital for mental examination September 4. He became ill later and died Saturday. Although diagnosis of his case was not positive, Dr. Grayson said there was a "suspicion" of meningitis, resulting in quarantine of 30 patients in the ward where he died.

Dr. Grayson said Monday night that quarantine of the three camps was established because of the intermingling of prisoners at the prison farm. Downey was sent to the hospital from Camp 3, while Vance was transferred from Camp 3 to the prison hospital at Camp 1.

An absolute quarantine of the three camps has been established," Dr. Grayson said. "No one is allowed to enter or leave the three camps. I would suggest that sheriff be advised not to take prisoners to the camps, as they will not be admitted."
Tom C. Coghill, superintendent of the prison farm, is directing its operation from Camp 1. He was not at Camp 1 when the quarantine was established and will direct operations by telephone from the negro camp at Cummins.

Dr. Grayson said the Vance case is the first since the winter of 1933, when 17 cases developed, with eight deaths. The state health officer said Superintendent Coghill is co-operating with the Health Department in every way and that all precautionary measures are being taken.

Presbyterian Groups Convene at Magnolia

MAGNOLIA, Ark. — Groups two and three of the Women's Auxiliary of the Magnolia Presbyterian church, Monday with 165 delegates in attendance.
Mrs. Doris McRae of Hope presided at the opening session and Mrs. Robert Morgan of Camden presided in the afternoon. Delegates in attendance were from Hope, Arkadelphia, Stamps, Columbus, Scotland, Church and other communities.

The evening speaker on the day's program was Mrs. Walter Craven of Excelsior Springs, Mo., a teacher at the Missouri Synod. She spoke at both the morning and afternoon sessions of instruction, her lectures. She spoke in the morning on "Why Build a Church?" and in the afternoon on "What Kind of a Church to Build."

Martin Luther wrote 37 hymns, of which "Eli, Eli, Petre Darg" is regarded as his masterpiece.

Rowe, Warneke to Pitch First Game

Arkansas Pair Selected as Hurlers in World Series Opener

DETROIT. — (AP) — Arkansas will furnish all the sharp-shooting ammunition for the opening of baseball's annual civil war.
It will be Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, right-handed rifleman from El Dorado, and Lonnie Warneke, the pride of the Ozarks, when the Detroit Tigers meet the charge of the sensational Chicago Cubs this Wednesday in the first game of the 1935 world series.

After driving his American League champions through a hard two-hour drill under a welcome sun at Navin Field, benning as he saw them snap out of their pre-season sluggishness with a real show of spirit, Manager Cochrane ended a lingering uncertainty about his pitching plans.

"Rowe is right and that means he's our No. 1 man," said Cochrane. The fiery backstopping pilot of the Tigers was enthusiastic as he watched the tall right-hander breeze through a half-hour's workout. The Schoolboy's definite nomination by Cochrane for the opening game was the signal for fresh optimism in the Bengal camp.

"We know Warneke is tough, that he's the man we will have to beat," conceded Cochrane, "but Rowe will match everything he's got and the rest of our right-handed staff should give us the edge—maybe in six games. Those Cubs will see plenty of other balls. You can bet on that much, no matter how long the series lasts."

"I might change my mind about the rotation but my tenton now is to pitch Rowe, Tommy Bridges and Elden Auker, in that order," continued the Detroit leader. "All three have the benefit of last year's experience. They've all got what it takes to beat the Cubs, mostly a right-handed bunch of hitters. I don't need to gamble with a smart veteran like Al Crowder, as I did for the opening game of last year's series. At that, I won't hesitate to use Crowder, if a good spot develops for him."

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON. More than a year before election, the administration has counted up all electoral votes of the six New England states and virtually kissed them goodbye.

Everyone here admits New England is sore and the general idea is that anything can be done about it. Optimists hope that business will improve to the point that Roosevelt can hold Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which he captured in 1932 while Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Connecticut were reasserting their traditional Republicanism.

Traveling recently in that northeast corner of the nation, your correspondent undertook to learn more about this state of affairs. There were many members of the brand of Republicanism commonly called "reactionary" and no area is more horrified by "the spreading program."

Introduction to the New Deal has come largely through such folks as the not-so-popular Jimmy Roosevelt and Gov. Jim Curley of Massachusetts. These factors are to some degree offset by Roosevelt's appeal to the "common man."

But the tip-off on the New Deal

Bobcats to Play Horatio Friday

Coach Hammons Expects Stiff Battle in Third Game of Season

The Hope High School football team will play its third game of the season here Friday night against the Horatio Lions.
The Bobcats came out of a tough game with Camden last Friday in good shape, and are expected to be at top speed with the exception of Ramsey, against the Horatio team.

Coach Hammons said Tuesday that heavy workouts would be resumed this week to prepare the team for a hard battle. Horatio will be playing its second game of the season.

Last week the Lions triumphed over Van Buren, 6 to 0, with Kanitobbe, 190-pound Indian, going over for the touchdown.

Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Rogers

President Speaks at Los Angeles—Praises Liberal Spirit of Americans

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (AP) — President Roosevelt, speaking in the large coliseum that was the site of the 1932 Olympic games, Tuesday paid tribute to the "liberal spirit" of California, and made a tender reference to the death of his friend, the late Will Rogers.

The president again expressed belief that the economic skies were clearing "as shown not by figures alone, but by the spirit of the great mass of Americans in every part of the country."

Woman Is Jailed in Death of Negro

Officers Reopen Case of Louie Peoples, Killed Near Guernsey

A negro woman was held in jail here Tuesday in connection with the death of Louie Peoples, negro, whose body was found along the Missouri Pacific tracks near Guernsey September 8.

The negro woman's name was not revealed by officers. She was said to be a resident of Guernsey, the home of the dead negro.

The case was reopened this week with the aid of Homer Burke, Missouri Pacific special agent, sent here to make a further investigation of the case.

Following the discovery of Peoples' badly mangled body, a coroner's jury returned an inquest which said that the negro "came to his death by being forced from a train or by falling from a train."

If the water taken from them by expropriation did not return, our oceans would dry up in 3000 years.

Railroad Empire to VanSweringens

Gigantic Transportation System Recovered by Former Owners

NEW YORK. — (AP) — The Van Sweringens brothers of Cleveland Monday seized control of their $3,000,000 railroad empire as it was placed on a public auction block in Manhattan.

The two former real estate salesmen, aided by a Great Lakes steamship operator and an Indiana preserving jar manufacturer, were high bidders for key securities carrying control of the greatest railway mileage ever assembled in private hands.

Their bids, aggregating $3,121,000, together with $1,582,000 offered by a New York investment house, took all the collateral offered at auction by a banking group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., on default of loans to the Van Sweringens, aggregating with back interest some $50,000,000.

Allotment Regained
The Van Sweringens purchase took all the approximately 51 per cent interest in Allegheny Corporation, their key railroad holding company, together with securities of the Van Sweringens Corporation, the Cleveland Terminals, and other strictly Van Sweringens enterprises.

The purchase by the investment house—Hallgarten & Co.—was of certain moderate sized blocks of listed securities of some of the Van Sweringens railways and a few industrial corporations, not essential to control of the far-flung empire.

The banking group, receiving in the aggregate only $4,703,000, suffered a loss, it is understood, was taken by J. P. Morgan & Co., and smaller parts by associated banks.

The Van Sweringens brothers regained control of their vast holdings through the newly-formed Midamerica Corporation, incorporated at Columbus, O., only last Saturday.

Officers Continue Investigation of Death of Farmer

Rumor That One Man Is Held in Jail Gets Flat Denial

MOVEMENTS TRACED

Head Injury Develops While on Fishing Party, Deputy Asserts

Deputy Sheriff R. O. Robins announced Tuesday that approximately 15 persons would be summoned before the Hempstead county grand jury next week to tell of what they knew surrounding the death of Roy Collins, Spring Hill farmer and stockman.

Collins, 40, died in a local hospital Sunday night of a fractured skull. How he received the fracture has not been fully explained.

Officers continued to work on the case Tuesday, but no arrests have been made, a deputy in the sheriff's office said late in the afternoon. A rumor that one man was held in jail was denied by the sheriff's department.

Deputy Robins said that Collins left home early Saturday morning on a fishing party to Guernsey lake. It was believed that he was asleep upon arrival at the lake and he was not disturbed, Robins said.

Later it developed that Collins was suffering from a head injury. He was returned to Hope and taken to Julia Chester hospital where he died of a fracture of the right skull.

He arrived at the hospital about 10 a. m. He lapsed into an unconscious condition and died about 8:30 p. m. Sunday. He made no statement to officials.

Collins was buried Monday afternoon near Spring Hill.

Marion Refuses Legalize Liquor

All of 109 Citizens Vote Dry—Beer and Light Wines to Be Sold

MARION, Ark. — (AP) — This township apparently may lay claim to being the "driest" in the United States.

By a unanimous vote, 109 of the town's 215 qualified voters went to the polls Monday and refused to legalize the sale of liquor.

It is said that the reason why the people of this town are so strongly against liquor is that Marion has become a "Gretchen Green" for Tennessee couples who suddenly decide to wed. The marrying business is very profitable and the townsfolk fear that it might suffer should there arise a suspicion that Marion marriages generally were inspired by liquor.

Marion has only "a couple of dozen people who want liquor," Mayor S. Val Neely said. "There may have been a few more," he said, "but they didn't take the trouble to vote."

Before Monday's special election, permits for the sale of liquor were denied on the grounds that the town had no marshal and therefore could not comply with Arkansas' legislation act that liquor be sold under "police supervision."

The effect of the vote was to ban the sale of legal liquor for three years. The small vote was attributed by Mayor Neely to the fact that no one feared the wet's strength. Beer and light wines are sold at four places in Marion.

Hendrix Family in Auto Mishap

Car Overturns Twice When Steering Gear Breaks

Dewey Hendrix, deputy county tax assessor and family, narrowly escaped serious injury when their car overturned Sunday afternoon about half a mile south of Williamsville.

The accident occurred about 6 p. m. Mr. Hendrix, his wife, and son, Mrs. Hendrix's mother, Mrs. Cox and R. A. Johnson, of Spring Hill were returning from Magnolia.

The steering gear broke, causing the car to leave the highway, overturning twice.

None of the occupants of the car were seriously hurt. Mrs. Hendrix and Mrs. Cox suffered severe bruising and minor cuts. The car, a Plymouth sedan, was demolished.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

This is the first of two articles in which Dr. Fishbein discusses efficiency of a new treatment for rupture.

Doctors Divide Over Rupture Treatment.

There was a time when no one would think of mentioning a rupture or hernia in polite society, let alone indulging in a scientific discussion of its care. But nowadays people are being educated about all the different conditions that may disturb their anatomy.

Much discussion has centered around whether a hernia or rupture should be treated by surgery or by the new injection method. Opinions vary according to the experience of those who are doing the work, the number of people being treated, occupations of those who are operated on, and many other factors.

One writer on health subjects has constituted himself champion of the so-called injection method of treating ruptures, basing his arguments, apparently, on the successful results reported by a few men who specialize in this technique.

A rupture is merely the protrusion of the contents of the abdomen through a weak place in the wall. This makes a lump at the point where the organs force their way toward the surface. One of the weak spots is in the midline between the large muscles that pass from the end of the chest downward. Another common place for a rupture is in the groin at the bottom of the abdominal cavity. Still another common place is in the sex organs.

A surgeon operates on these conditions by pushing back the organs which extrude, then finding the weak spot, and sewing the tissues together to make a solid wall.

In the injection method the extruded tissues are pushed back; then a substance which sets up inflammation or irritation is injected, to cause an inflammatory reaction in the tissues and cause them to heal together.

There are many causes for ruptures. Sometimes they are present at birth, sometimes they are associated with the lifting of heavy objects, or with exceptional strains, such as occur with laborers and athletes.

Sometimes they are associated with excessive fat, and occasionally they occur from failure to heal after a surgical operation.

A good many people who have very small ruptures are able to obtain relief by wearing a truss or support which holds the tissues in place and gives opportunity for healing. Hernias of long standing, however, are likely to increase in size if they are not treated.

As the hernia enlarges it tends to fill completely the opening through which it has pushed its way. Finally the blood vessels are so constricted that the blood flow stops, and the hernia is said to be strangulated.

If a hernia is strangulated, it tends to become gangrenous, so that the complication of strangulation is most serious.

NEXT: Dangers of the "injection method."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Duty Without Reward Often Most Important.

"It's all right, Jerry. Don't feel too badly. Grandma's comfortable and she'll be around in half an hour. No bones are broken. She is just bruised and scraped a little. That's all."

"What's all this?" I asked.

"She's all right. I meant to fix that board, but the kids kept calling me for something or other."

"And besides it looked like such a teeny weeny thing to worry over. Why I could jump a ditch five times that wide. What was Grandma doin', anyway?"

"Getting carrots out of the garden for dinner. The board was rotten and she went down."

"Say, Mom, it's kinda funny. I tell you what I was doing when Grandma got hurt. Earl's baby sister swung needed a new book and we went to the store and got one and screwed it in tight. And Mrs. Jones said I was a fine boy for helping—I was the nicest boy she knew, and I came home feeling fine and then here was Grandma laid up and everybody looked right at me. Dad called me everything for not getting that new board. Grandma'll say it's all right because she would let me cut off her head and wouldn't squeal. I hate to go and tell her I'm sorry. She'll just pat me and say I'm a grand boy, and I'll snifle and—well, you know."

"Philanthropy Versus Duty. Jerry, you are sermonizing. It's a good sign. Nobody needs to talk to a chap who can think for himself."

"I just think things happen kind of funny, that's all. I was trying to help somebody and then I get the devils-fits."

His mother smiled at the dejected figure, jaws-in-hands over bent knees. "Can you take it if I say something?"

"I can't say anything."

"I just want to explain now that your mind's on it. There are two kinds of duty. One that gets you praise and notice, and one that nobody sees or cares about. I know a lady who is praised all over town because she works so hard on boards. Not your kind, the other kind. Every one makes an awful fuss when they see her. She's called 'benevolent' or 'philanthropic.'"

"But actually her family is not happy. Her husband tries to hide his eyes, and the girls' heads need letting down. They live on cold cuts and all gather in the kitchen to do the dishes once a day. The little brother roams the streets and the neighbors look after him. This is a very nice lady, and she is in real earnest about doing good. But a few of us think she is mistaken, that's all. We think she chose the wrong kind of duty. Or at least she should attend to her home first."

"I'm not a show-off, Mom."

"I know that. But praise is sweet. And opinion means a lot. Billy Smith wouldn't take a job at the gas station to help his mother out. Instead he is helping Mr. Pratt with his books for nothing because he says 'the poor old fellow has been sick and he has no son.' The whole town thinks he is a fine fellow now. See?"

"Um, I guess you kind of have to mix it."

"That's it, and do things nobody gives you credit for."

"Things make an awful lot of words, don't they?"

"Always. It seems that you are blamed if you do and you're blamed if you don't in this world. It is best to think instead of talk, however. Now go up and get your pat. And don't bowl."

A visitor at a local ball game asked: "Do you ever score any runs?"

"I don't know," replied the hometown fan. "I've only been watching them play for three seasons."

The BLUE DOOR

by Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

RUTH WOODSON, pretty, penniless girl of 18 in search of work, seeks refuge from a storm in an old stone house with a blue door in the little town of Worthville. The queer old housekeeper, BERTHA GIBBS, also known as PENNY, thinks Ruth to be ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Ruth falls in love with JOHN McNEILL and decides to stay on, posing as Elaine.

Elaine Chalmers, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her childhood hero, John McNeill. John receives a letter from Elaine and realizes that the girl next door is an impostor. He loves her, regardless. He is called out of town suddenly and leaves a note of explanation for Ruth, but Bertha Gibbs fails to give it to her.

Ruth fears John has gone away in disgust. That night, however, she is called to the door by John. Elaine's uncle, who has been hiding in the old house after escaping from an insane asylum where he has been unjustly held. She persuades him to prove his sanity legally.

Elaine arrives and discovers Ruth has been using her name. She talks to Ruth and Ruth goes away. As she is hitch-hiking to Cleveland she is picked up and given a job in that city as housemaid. Elaine talks with her uncle, McNeill while John is hurrying home to Ruth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

JOHN McNEILL, arriving in Worthville Thursday morning, took a taxi to his home. He let himself in with a latch key, deposited his bags in the hall and headed for the bathroom. When he came on the run, from the back of the house he found her for a few minutes, giving her the detailed family news which she craved.

Presently he looked at his watch and said, "Before I go to the factory I'm going over to the Hunter place."

"You botch!" Susie agreed. "Miss Elaine done come ova here yesterday to get news of you. She tell me to have Mr. John come to see her, minute he gets home."

"She did, eh?" exclaimed John, pleased.

When he knocked at the front door, Bertha admitted him. John asked, "Is it too early for me to see Elaine, Bertha?"

The old woman stared at him queerly. He thought she had not heard and repeated the question. Bertha Gibbs, still silent, turned to look in the direction of the upper hall. He followed her gaze. A girl was coming down the stairs, but it was not the girl for whom he waited. This one was a glamorous stranger. She wore smoke-gray satin lounging pajamas held at the waist with a heavy red sash. Her hair was gold-brown. Her eyes were dark. She was very, very beautiful and she was smiling at him.

"John McNeill!" said the girl, in a voice that was somehow tender in spite of its clipped tones. "Do you remember me?"

John said, "Elaine Chalmers."

It was more of a statement than a greeting.

"Where is she?" he asked.

quite a rage before she left—"A rage?" John repeated blankly.

"Yes," said Elaine, sighing. "There was no use trying to reason with her. Girls of that type—girls who live by their wits, you know—are primitive and sly and not at all reasonable. They evade you—"

John replied, coldly courteous. "She was not primitive and not sly. You must be thinking of some one else. One of your acquaintances at Graycastle possibly."

Elaine blushed. She was furious, but she must keep the fact concealed. When she'd whipped this small town hero into line there'd be time enough, ways enough, to punish him then. Her expression remained persistently sweet and grateful. "I could have turned her over to the police, of course," she reminded him. "But I didn't. I even offered her money. She refused it without even thanking me. Don't you think you're being a little unfair to blame me for anything, John? After all, the girl was an adventuress. She was even walking off in my clothes."

"Because she was cold!" Elaine shrugged. "They were not hers, at least."

"Where did she go?" John demanded. "How am I to find her?" Elaine's eyebrows shot up. She had not expected quite this behavior. She had counted on her beauty, her personality, the importance of her presence here, all uniting to dazzle John McNeill.

"Where did she go?" John demanded again. He turned to Bertha Gibbs, so that the question included her, too. "Where is she?"

Bertha's eyes were lowered. She twisted a corner of her apron, said miserably, "I didn't give her your letter, Mr. John. I'm to blame as well as Miss Elaine. We don't know where she's gone."

"She did, eh?" exclaimed John, pleased.

When he knocked at the front door, Bertha admitted him. John asked, "Is it too early for me to see Elaine, Bertha?"

The old woman stared at him queerly. He thought she had not heard and repeated the question. Bertha Gibbs, still silent, turned to look in the direction of the upper hall. He followed her gaze. A girl was coming down the stairs, but it was not the girl for whom he waited. This one was a glamorous stranger. She wore smoke-gray satin lounging pajamas held at the waist with a heavy red sash. Her hair was gold-brown. Her eyes were dark. She was very, very beautiful and she was smiling at him.

"John McNeill!" said the girl, in a voice that was somehow tender in spite of its clipped tones. "Do you remember me?"

John said, "Elaine Chalmers."

It was more of a statement than a greeting.

"Where is she?" he asked.

I was escaping from that place when you passed me on the road. I've been staying here since then. I'm on my way to give myself up now—"

"But he'll be out again soon," old Bertha broke in, nodding her head emphatically.

John McNeill heard all this only in relation to the girl who had been here and was gone. His mind said, "God! An escaped madman. And he was living in the house with her for days!"

DUNCAN HUNTER said, "Can you call a taxi for me, McNeill?"

"Yes," replied John. "But first I must ask you something. You were here in this house with another person for several days. Not your niece, but a girl about her age. She's gone, and none of us know where. Do you know, by any chance?"

Duncan Hunter shook his head. "It shames me to say that I don't. The girl came to me in the darkest hour of my discouragement and persuaded me to hold on a while longer. She talked and add grit into me. She opened the door for me—if I may be permitted to speak in an old-fashioned, florid way—to a healthy vision of life and duty. But, like most introverts, I came out of the experience thinking only of myself. I forgot to be curious about her. She was nothing but a gentle personality who had helped me over a rough place. Who is she, by the way?"

"I don't know," John McNeill told him.

Duncan Hunter looked at John McNeill's tight-lipped face and said, "If you want to find her that much, it can be done. There are ways. Detective service, you know. I've more money than I'll ever need. You can count on me to any extent."

"Thank you, Mr. Hunter," John said, belatedly offering his hand. "I can swing the cost all right. Your advice was what I needed. I'll call a taxi now. What train are you catching, the 10:15 south?"

"Yes," replied Duncan Hunter. "Goodbye, my boy, and good luck. Never let a girl go if you love her. I did that once—"

After John had gone they stood locked in inactive silence for a time. Then Elaine said, "Was it Jane Emerson, Uncle Duncan?"

"Yes," he answered. "That was her name then."

"It's still her name," Elaine told him. "She's secretary to Madame Leski at Graycastle. She's very good-looking and attractive, but so straight-laced you want to kill her."

"She was always those things," Duncan replied. "But a man shouldn't put a Brazilian adventure before his love. Not if his love happens to be a proud, unforgiving woman."

Elaine said, "I think it's because of you that she takes such an interest in me. She's always trying to reform me. When she's not reforming me in her spare time she's reading books on how to grow orchids."

"Eh?" said Duncan Hunter in surprise.

But Elaine was no longer interested. She was pulling aside the curtains at a window to see John McNeill get into a roadster and go driving off like mad.

I believe in the World and its bigness and splendor;
That most of the hearts beating round us are tender;
That days are but footsteps and years are but miles
That lead us to beauty and singing and smiles;
That roses that blossom and toilers that plod
Are filled with the glorious spirit of God.
That all that goes out of this world leaves behind
Some duty accomplished for mortals to find;
That the humblest of creatures our praise is deserving.
For it, with the wisest, the Master is serving.—E. A. G.

WITH THE LADIES

By Helen Welshimer

Now women have something else for which to answer. Just as if we haven't taken enough blame since the day that Eve saw an apple on a tree and called Adam's attention to it.

Dr. L. E. Bracken, of Columbus, O., who told members of the American Association of Official Surgeons, assembled in convention in Chicago, that criminals can be approached before they are born, placed a goodly share of the responsibility on expectant mothers. If they are subject to bursts of anger the unborn child "goes through the period of gestation in a devil's hotbed," he said.

Furthermore, the child's immediate future is marked by irritability and such tantrums are the forerunner of incorrigibility and criminal tendencies. Dr. Bracken claims.

In fact, you can tell by Johnnie's wails whether or not he is going to be a pillar of the state or somebody the pillars prosecute.

It is all his mother's fault, either way.

Working Toward an Ideal

Certainly no one doubts but that prenatal care is most important. It is highly probable, even to a lay mind, that a mother's temperament during the prenatal period influences her child. If Dr. Bracken is right, a woman's responsibility doubles itself, but that persistent worry as to whether the unborn Johnnie or Jimmie will be a rich man, poor man, beggar man or thief, is solved. How nice it must be to know that your children are going to turn out well!

There should come a peaceful time when all little boys will ride to school on white ponies with apples for their teachers. When these future generations of boys and girls become men they will create a blameless world, which contains only the forgivable human failings.

And why not? After all, by selection and nurture we cultivate flowers and fruits to a fine perfection. Why shouldn't we do the same thing with people? We put aside vast amounts of money to help in the reconstruction of those who have displayed criminal tendencies. If we can prevent the birth of such tendencies it will be finer than any social project that man has ever conceived.

Curbing Crime Up to Mother

Perfection was the dream which God used as a basis for that Garden whose spring was so brief. It was woman who closed its gates. Now it is woman who must open them again, according to Dr. Bracken.

Certainly no mother wants an irritable baby. There isn't much fun in making bread puddings and jelly while a child howls in his carriage. It isn't a pleasure to have your telephone ring at three in the morning because your belligerent offspring has sounded a neighborhood alarm and the superintendent of the building thinks you can wave a stop sign.

There are a few questions we should like to ask. If every irritable baby can be suspected of incorrigibility and criminal tendencies, what shall we do about the children who are having tantrums today? It isn't pleasant to know that your small son's face may appear in the postoffice instead of on a postage stamp.

Just the same, if Dr. Bracken is right, he has thrown scientific light on the greatest human problem of any age. In the future we needn't worry how to correct or punish criminality. We can prevent it.

It seems to be woman's work. So many difficult things are!

They were sitting in the moonlight. No words broke the stillness. The young lady was yawning. Suddenly she said: "Suppose you had money, what would you do?"

"If I had money," he said with a rush of enthusiasm, "I would travel."

He felt her tiny hand in his. He closed his eyes and sighed with contentment. When he looked up again she was gone.

In his hand lay a dime.

During the World War, soldiers would shovel the gas out of the trenches after a heavier-than-air gas attack. An ordinary shovel, with canvas flaps on three sides, was used.

To Probe Office of Circuit Clerk

Grand Jury at Fort Smith Convened in Special Session

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Circuit Judge J. Sam Wood called a special Grand Jury session to convene Tuesday to probe alleged irregularities in the office of the Sebastian county circuit clerk.

The action followed a conference here Monday at which Frank Story, auditor from Comptroller Griffin Smith's office, Little Rock, met with Prosecuting Attorney Harrell Harper and Judge Wood. Story brought copies of the county's 1934 audit report, but it will not be filed until Tuesday.

A preliminary report filed several months ago charged that there was a shortage of approximately $4,200 in the accounts of former Circuit Clerk Oscar Durden. The Grand Jury for the July term, which investigated Durden's affairs, will be the one reconvened Tuesday.

Comptroller to Testify

Comptroller Smith, criticized by the Grand Jury at its first session, is expected to be a witness. Smith in his previous report, charged the present circuit clerk, Paul Lynch, with "flagrantly" disregarding the county salary act. The jury denounced Smith and defended Lynch.

After the filing of the preliminary audit report in the circuit clerk's office last May, Durden's surety firm turned over to the county $2,500, the full amount of his bond. Prosecuting Attorney Harper later filed suit to collect from Durden the remainder of the alleged shortage.

It has been estimated that more than 40,000,000 persons in the United States are improperly housed.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

Three States Off Federal Dole List

October Relief Allotments $24,000,000 Under September

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Three more states were removed from the federal dole list Monday, while a fourth—Louisiana—was omitted by the PWA in winding up the allocation of its work relief dollars.

October grants to the states for direct relief totaled $61,720,000, a reduction of nearly $24,000,000 from September allotments.

The allotments included:
Arkansas $ 400,000
Kentucky 500,000
Texas 1,000,000
Louisiana 850,000
Mississippi 400,000

The three states taken from the dole list were Indiana, New Hampshire and Nevada. This decision by Aubrey Williams, acting WPA administrator during Hopkins' tour with Mr. Roosevelt, brought to six the number of states where direct relief already has been discontinued because of progress in providing work relief jobs.

It has been estimated that only one-third of all American children are born in hospitals.

NEW, EXCLUSIVE PHOTOS FROM ETHIOPIA

An Ogaden native is shown practicing rifle fire in the thorny, difficult-to-traverse scrub lands—one of Ethiopia's natural defenses against invasion.

In these pictures rushed to America following his arrival in Ethiopia, H. V. Dress NEA Service staff photographer, portrays the desperate military preparations made by the little African kingdom to defend itself from attack by Italy. Not only is the full manpower of the country being rushed to the front lines, but the very boys are being accepted for military service. Dwarfed by the grown men beside him, you see (above) a 12-year-old recruit marching toward a concentration camp carrying a rifle that seems almost as big as he is.

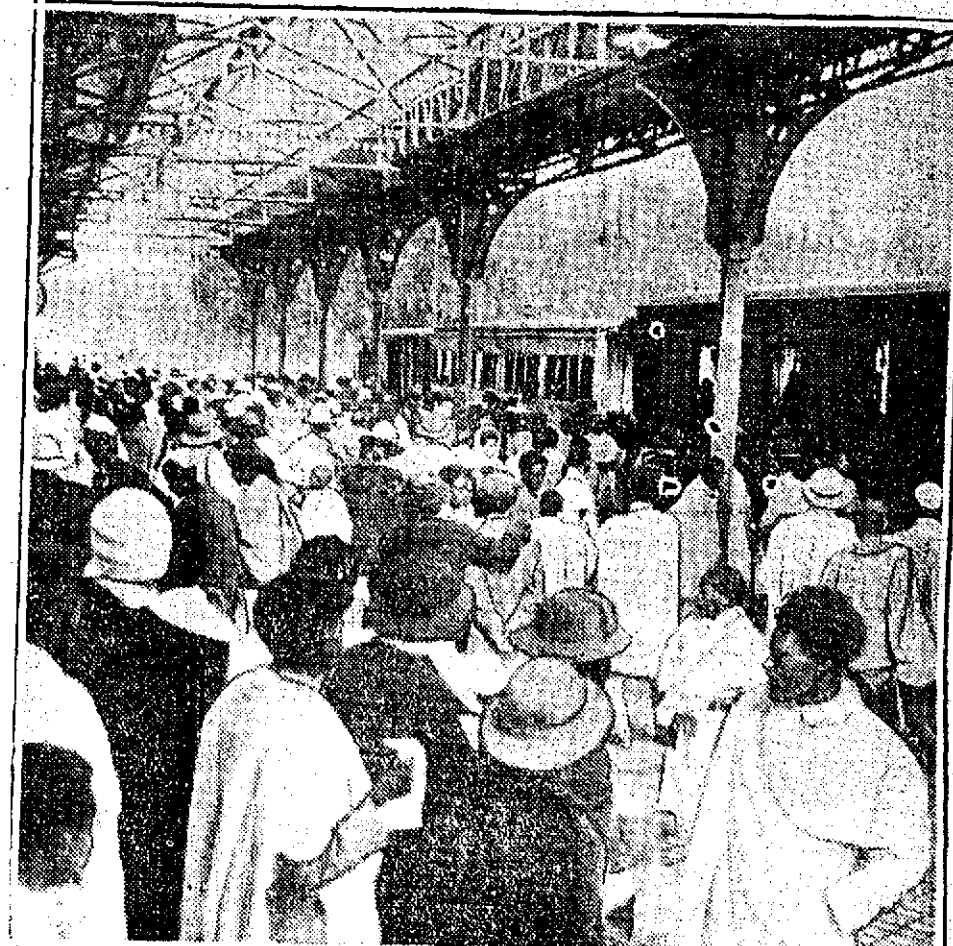

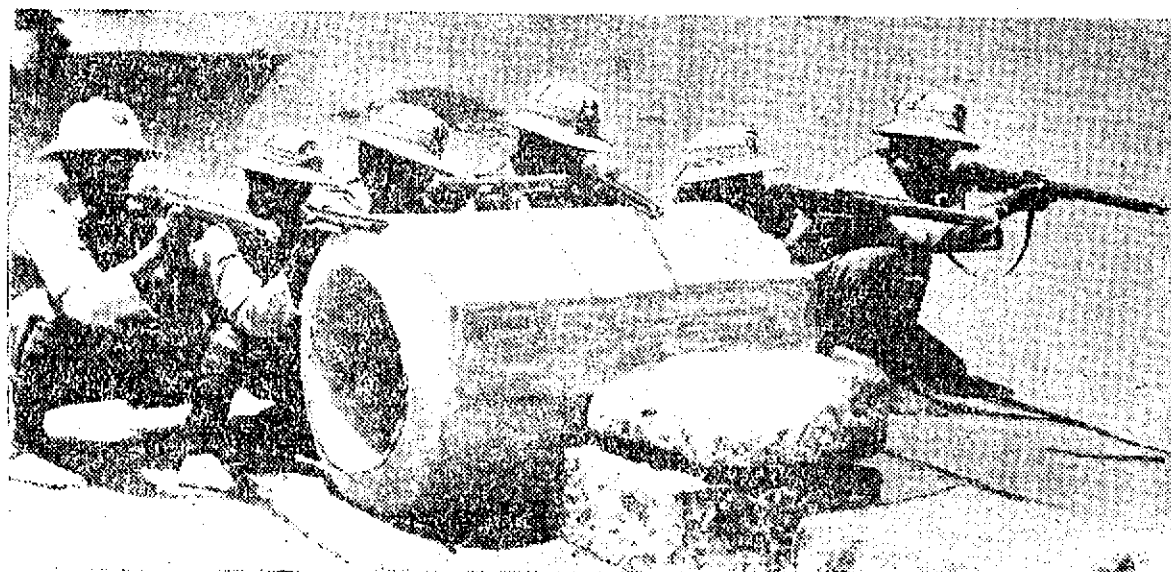

Barfooted and without any apparent equipment, Ethiopian warriors congregate in the doorway of a troop car enroute to the front. The man at left hides as it is against his religion to be photographed.

Soldiers and relatives are pictured at the railroad station in Addis Ababa, speeding their families out of the capital which lies in peril of attack from the air.

Ethiopia's sole gateway by sea to the outside world is Djibuti, capital of French Somaliland, a section of the city's railway yards, freight houses, and waterfront being shown here. Through this port the great bulk of imports and exports of Haile Selassie's empire passes. In the left background ships are shown riding in the harbor.

A trainload of Ethiopian troops and supplies is shown going down the line between Duanle and Diridawa to repair damage done by heavy rains to the important railroad from Addis Ababa to the shore.

Purvis Supports Mrs. Sage's Case

Believes 'Woman in Red' Should Be Permitted to Stay in U. S.

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Federal authorities declared Monday night they would continue to seek deportation of the Dillinger slaying "woman in red" despite Melvin H. Purvis' affirmation of her services in ambushing the late public enemy No. 1.

Shortly after the former chief of the federal agents here had issued a statement that as "part of her reward" he believed Mrs. Anna Sage should be allowed to remain in the United States, Federal District Attorney Michael Igoe said:

"I have not fully read Mr. Purvis' statement but we are going ahead with our effort to see that Anna Sage is deported."

In a statement which Purvis handed out in the press room of the Federal Court building after he had conferred with the district attorney, Purvis said the woman, publicized as the wearer of a red dress the night John Dillinger walked out of a neighborhood movie theater to his death, had furnished the information which led to Dillinger's capture and for one am not ungrateful.

"I sincerely believe that some steps should be taken to prevent her deportation," his statement said. "She desired to remain in the United States and as part of her reward, I believe she should be allowed to do so."

Mrs. Sage, fighting an Immigration Bureau's order for her return to Roumania as an undesirable alien, asserted she alone led Dillinger into the federal trap the night of July 22, 1934. She claimed Purvis guaranteed her she would not be sent out of the country in return for the Dillinger information. Her story won her a federal court habeas corpus hearing and temporary stay from deportation until October 3.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Comparative Beauty—Measuring's Best Guide For Diet.

Just as important as the bathroom scales on which every beauty minded woman should weigh herself daily is an accurate tape measure with which to check up on dimensions. To gain a pound is no special calamity providing your measurements remain about the same.

However, if, instead of being evenly distributed, the added weight is taken on across the hips and the tape measure shows a wider spread there, something ought to be done before another pound is gained.

Starting a strenuous reducing routine when you know absolutely nothing about your measurements is all wrong. If you hips are too broad but the rest of your dimensions perfectly all right, obviously exercise and diet is in order. If you are overweight in several places go ahead with the diet, using the tape measure each night to see if you are losing proportionate weight around waistline, hips, legs and arms.

Remember that height and age have an important bearing on what your dimensions should be. Just because a woman aged thirty is the same height she was at twenty doesn't mean that her measurements should be the same. She ought to be a trifle larger everywhere as she gets older.

As shining examples of correctly proportioned women you can very well take some of the commercial models and screen actresses who look healthy rather than too thin and angular in spots.

There is, for instance, Edna Waldron, Hollywood screen dancer, whom dance directors say has a perfect 1935 figure. She's 5 feet 3½ inches tall. Her throat measures 11½ inches; bust 33½; waist 23½; hips, 33½ and calf 12½ inches.

A commercial photographer's model who is 5 feet 7 inches tall measures 34 inches about the bust; 36 around hips; 27 waistline and 13 around the calf of her leg. She's twenty-five.

NEXT: Beauty at the football game.

HOLLYWOOD — Now that Hollywood has become so "grand opera minded" that it virtually has a corner on operatic talent, studio executives are beginning to wonder "Where do we go from here?"

P. T. A. Rally for Blevins Friday

Total of 611 Students Enrolled at Blevins, McCaskill Schools

The Parent Teachers Association of Blevins will hold a rally meeting at the school Friday night, October 4, Mrs. Timberlake president, announced Tuesday.

Class Officers Elected
At various class meetings in Blevins High School last week the following officers were elected.

Seniors
President, Ruth Mae Cummings; vice president, Floyce Ursey; secretary treasurer, Inez Wood; Sargent at arms, Allen Sage; sponsor, Miss Lela Vaughan.

Juniors
President, Dutch Walters; vice president, Bert Scott; secretary treasurer, Louise Eley; Sponsor, Charles Teeter.

Freshmen
President, Dale Bonds; vice president, Lucille Smith; secretary treasurer, Melva Sue Trebbie; sponsor, Miss Nell McHahan.

The sophomores chose Harold Whitten as sponsor but have not elected officers.

Superintendent A. B. Wetherington announced the total enrollment of the McCaskill and Blevins schools at 611.

ities have followed that picture's formula rather closely.

Each has contained a thread of a love story and each has given its star opportunity to sing several arias from popular operas, with the final warbling usually being done in the Metropolitan Grand Opera House.

Now, however, the producers are facing the necessity of doing something different with their songbirds. Not only is the public beginning to tire of seeing the same formula dumped into the pot, but the arias from popular operas are rapidly being exhausted.

So far these arias have been used by Miss Moore in two films and by Lawrence Tibbett, Lily Pons, Gladys Swarthout, Nino Martini, and Mary Ellis in one picture each. And they all have contracts for more productions.

What Songs New?

In addition to the movies have their own singers — Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Irene Dunne, John Boles, and Michael Bartlett, all of whom excel in classical numbers. Then there are a dozen or more others whose forte is popular numbers. These cause the producers no worry. Plenty of song writers take care of them.

The opera stars are the real problem. The public has indicated that it wants these people. But it doesn't want them to remain in the mould already cut. And it's for the producers to decide what shape the new mould should assume. That's what is giving them gray hair. They actually don't know what to do.

"Right now I can think of only two possible solutions," declares Ernest Lubitsch, Paramount production chief. "One is the developing of original operas for the screen. However, there is considerable doubt as to whether our present crop of song writers could adapt themselves to this medium, which they never before have attempted."

"The other solution is for the singing stars to turn to popular numbers. In my opinion this would satisfy the public. I believe they are primarily interested in the voices of the stars. I don't think it matters a great deal what type of songs they sing as long as they are good."

Lubitsch sums up pretty well the opinion of the industry. Nevertheless, studio bosses are trying to find still another approach to this problem. They have heavy investments in their songsters. And they must get their money back somehow.

Fat Book, Fat Job
After being in preparation more than a year, with nearly every writer on the Warner lot having a crack at it, adaptation, "Anthony Adverse" finally will go into production next month. Fredric March plays the title role, with Mervyn LeRoy doing the directing. No leading lady has as yet been assigned, but Olivia de Havilland has the inside track.

No Restraint
Hollywood has evolved a system of guest hosts and hostesses, thanks to Alan Howbray. The actor has long followed a custom of holding "open house" every Sunday. And he didn't want to stop, although the strain was beginning to tell on him. So he hit upon the plan of appointing a host or hostess from among his guests each week, thus relieving himself of considerable responsibility.

"The plan works splendidly. You'd be surprised what a grand host a man can be—with the other guy's liquor!"

The New Deal

the first factor is primary in the tendency of northern mills to move south.

Blame Losses on Tax
Recently the big Pepperell Manufacturing Co. reported a last-year business of about $29,000,000 and a loss of about half a million. The concern paid some $1,000,000 in processing tax and New England feels that if there had been no processing tax such a company would have had something between an even break and $3,500,000 profit.

The AAA replies that the tax is uniform among all mills and that losses would have been the same without it, because cotton textiles is such a fiercely competitive industry.

The Pepperell company recently estimated it could pay 10 per cent above southern wages and operate profitably. But the average textile wage differential between north and south is placed at from 15 to 7 per cent.

Cheap Labor Hurts
With NRA and its code-fixed differential out and an apparent strong New England prejudice against "linking with the Constitution," conservative business men feel organized labor

Hailed as Huey's Governor Choice

Possible compromise candidate for governor of Louisiana in the frantic effort of Huey Long's lieutenants to bring harmony out of chaos is Judge Richard W. Leche, above, of the state court of appeals. All faction leaders are said to be agreed that Leche, member of a distinguished Louisiana family, was Long's choice for the office.

could solve the problem by a hard organization campaign in the south—with fewer strikes in the northern high wage area, where its ranks are strong.

Here arises another complication, because cotton farmers averaged only $100 cash income last year (it was $242 two or three years ago), indicating a large cheap labor reservoir which would threaten a higher wage structure.

Japanese imports have hit some textile constructions hard and generally tend to depress prices. New England wants Japan put on a quota basis.

South Gains, North Loses
It's said in Washington there are now 38,000,000 American cotton spindles in place, which at 60 hours a week would consume about nine million bales a year. Last year's consumption was only 5.2 million bales. Large overcapacity is indicated.

But New England's spindles dropped from 19 million in 1921 to 8.5 million in 1933, while the cotton-producing states, operating longer hours with lower wages, increased theirs from 16 to 18.5 millions.

And New England, though far from as conservative as she used to be,

He Made This 23c Tonic
Old John says "I had to get up 5 or 6 times every night. This bladder irregularity was accompanied with plenty flow, burning and backache. I flushed out excess acids with little green tablets containing buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., called BUKETS. They work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. After four days if not pleased any druggist will refund your 25c. I sleep good now." Brian's Drug Store, and John S. Gibson Drug Company.—adv.

Squirrel Season Opens in Arkansas Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Arkansas hunters oiled their guns Monday night and prepared to take to the woods Tuesday for the opening of the squirrel season.

The season continues through December 31 under regulations fixed by the state game and fish commission with a limit of eight squirrels per person daily. The last legal squirrel hunting season ended June 15.

The open season on deer starts the first Monday in December and continues through the second Wednesday the bag limit per huntsman being one buck a year.

probably—barring a diminution of its present anti-Roosevelt attitude—will vote for a conservative Republican candidate next year.

NOTICE!

As cotton and cotton seed are being sold rapidly now, the proceeds from same, or from sale of any other mortgaged property, should be turned in from day to day on loans. This is the safest plan for both parties concerned and it is not our policy to carry loans over.

This Is What She Wrote...

Dear Girls:
Maybe some of you think that marrying a boy you've known all your life, and settling down to keeping house, isn't very exciting. Especially when you're only 21 and want to have a good time while you're young.
I thought that. And then I met another man who had been lots of places and had a line almost any girl would fall for. He had plenty of money to spend, too, though he never would tell me just what his business was.
Pretty soon I broke with the boy I'd known so long. I'd made up my mind to marry this other man. I was sure I was in love with him, but—oh, I can't tell you all the rest. I want you to read my story in the new serial "The Golden Feather". Maybe you'll blame me for being a silly little fool. I blame myself enough—now. Anyhow, please read "The Golden Feather".
Yours very sincerely,
Jean Dunn

Jean Dunn, pretty stenographer who found herself the cat's-paw for a desperate criminal ring, is the heroine of "The Golden Feather." How Jean was rescued by federal agents, how she finally won the man she really loved make this one of the liveliest, most absorbing serials ever written.
